Andy Beyst

For Andy, fitness and health is not just a career, it is who he is at his core, a continual student of mind and body. Andy strongly believes how powerfully connected mind and body need to be in order to achieve a given task or goal. For the past 8 years and more intensively over the last 3 years in London, Andy has been developing and improving what he considers to be a unique set of techniques that when combined provide the best outcome. These range from sports science and functional movement to yoga, meditation and NLP.
